

Johnny Lightning was always fast, even extremely fast, sometimes his hand outpaced his reasoning. The January 18th turn of the wheel and the American continent. After a few days of drinking, freewater and playing cards, it was time to sober up... he needed money, in this way, career Johnny got his first job, his task was to protect a small bank in the far wild west. With his incredibly fast hand, it seemed very simple, just eliminate the bandits for whom robbery was a basic source of income. Of course, he must not kill honest customers bringing their savings to deposit in the bank vaults. However, he always has to adhere to the law of the wild west, he may shoot only after the opponent has already drawn a weapon. If the manager notices his progress, he may assign him to the night shift, an extremely responsible task. He must then be very careful not to confuse an ordinary customer with a bandit, in the darkness of the night everyone looks very similar. Johnny's workdays last until all twelve bank safes are filled. Some of the bandits belong to the famous Gonzales gang, if Johnny kills too many of them, then the trio of brothers challenges him to a duel. If Johnny wins, he receives a special bonus. The boys running errands also deserve attention, after shooting off their hats, it may turn out that they hide a bomb as a present from the Gonzaleses or money from customers. One must also be wary of swindlers who pretend to be honest customers. The most important are a keen eye and a quick hand.

